

The flagship experience, one that captures the true essence of Scotland rather than merely filling an itinerary. Dictated by the lunar cycle, a rare spring tide pulls the sea back to reveal a hidden, normally submerged coastal world. Guests explore the exposed seabed alongside Jayson before indulging in an extraordinary five-course beachside feast cooked over open fire, subtly elevated by freshly gathered seaweed and hyper-local coastal produce. Strictly limited to 12 guests, this intimate ritual offers an effortlessly private feel, whether joining a scheduled gathering or taking the shore exclusively. Designed for discerning couples, private groups, and high-end incentives, this is an immersive half-day destination in its own right, never a stop to be rushed.

HOW THE DAY RUNS

- 1 Meet at the confirmed shore: introductions, safety briefing, helmets & kit
- 2 Walk out with the falling tide (~800 m over mixed ground)
- 3 Guided foraging on the low shore: identification, cut never pull, what to take and what to leave
- 4 A short break while the fire is lit
- 5 Five courses cooked over fire and eaten on the beach, built from the day's harvest
- 6 The tide turns: walk back with take-home notes to keep foraging and cooking

Moderate fitness: uneven, slippery ground and sustained standing. Not suitable for wheelchairs or buggies.

GOOD TO KNOW

Meeting point: emailed a few days before, once weather and tides settle the best shore, always along the East Neuk, within easy reach of St Andrews. Transport not included.

Bring: wellies or grippy footwear and layered clothing for changeable coastal weather.

Fitness: moderate fitness and sure-footedness; uneven, slippery ground and sustained standing.

Booking: dates follow the spring tides. 7 days' notice for a refund minus a 10% admin fee; if we postpone and no date suits, full refund.

* Every menu is built on wild seaweed, so traces may be present in any dish; tell us about allergies at booking.
